

then broadcast in real time or rebroadcast over the Communication System's website with translation into various languages. The Telecommunications Kiosk will also allow the user to send and/or receive video e-mails as well as allow the user to link up with others they desire to have a video conference with.

Claims

I claim the following:

1. Communication System capable of enabling users to make a video recording of an expression or opinion on a wide variety of subjects which is then broadcast in real time or rebroadcast over the Internet.
2. Communication System utilizing a universal translator capable of translating video recordings, expressions, and other communications into various languages while they are broadcast over the Internet.
3. Communication System comprised of a website that utilizes a birth and death counter that informs the user of the rates of births and deaths occurring worldwide and in real time.
4. A Communication System that allows the user to place a video expression in a time capsule for viewing by the public, family members, or other entities at a designated point in time.

5. A Communication System with the capability to broadcast in real time and rebroadcast the world's greatest scholars discussing and debating global issues.

6. A Communication System with the capability of allowing the Internet audience to listen and interact with the world's greatest scholars during real time discussions and debates concerning global issues.

7. A Communication System with the capability of translating real time and rebroadcast discussions and debates conducted by the world's greatest scholars into various languages.

8. A Communication System featuring a chat room with the added feature of participants being able to actually see the person they are interacting with in real time and with translation into various languages.

9. A Communication System featuring a multilingual mall and auction site comprised of items from around the world.

10. A Communication System featuring an audio/video cellular phone allowing members to log onto the website if they do not own a computer and/or are temporarily away from a computer.

11. A Communication System featuring telecommunication kiosks that allow users to broadcast a video expressions including but not limited to living wills, words of wisdom for future generations, creative ideas, and their testimony of their existence on earth.

12. A Communication System featuring telecommunication kiosks equipped with a universal translator that translates video expression into various languages in real time.

13. A Communication System offering a top of the line 24-hour, 7-day a week news and current events service. (The current events will be regionalized by country for example “for Britain the issues effecting the lives of the average citizen. In the Middle East, the question of regional conflict vs the desire for peace; In America, issues such as but not limited to the question of abortion, the state of the political arena; etc.)

14. A Communication System that allows the user to view archived as well as contemporary movies, which can be accessed either through a computer or the audio/video cellular phone that is part of the Communication System.

15. A Communication System that allows the user to access a vast music database that can be enjoyed with the use of a computer or the audio/video cellular phone that is part of the Communication System.

16. A Communication System that allows the user to access a vast database of games that can be played on a computer or on the audio/video cellular phone that is part of the Communication System.